LeeAnne W. Creevy, CISA, CITP, and Michael Morrissey, AES, CISA, CISSP, RSM McGladrey, Inc.
Managing IT vendors is certainly not a new concept. Cloud computing (outsourcing a portion of a company's technology environment to a shared third-party environment), although not an entirely new concept, seems to be "all the buzz" as of late. The use of cloud computing can create numerous information security risks, generally related to dependence on security practices and assurances of a service provider. During this session, we will discuss some of the risks associated with cloud computing and will focus specifically on the vendor management aspects that insurers should pay particular attention to. Additionally, these risks have business implications beyond just IT; thus, coordination between the IT examiner and the financial examiner relative to these areas is important to consider during the examination.
